

SARAH JONES

OWNER, RED HILL FARMS

"Our farm has been in the family for seven generations, and we pride ourselves in being stewards of our land so that it can continue in our family for another seven generations."

EDUCATION

Sarah Jones graduated from Western Kentucky University with an accounting degree and became a Certified Public Accountant.

PRESENTATION INFORMATION

Mrs. Jones serves as an industry volunteer and speaks nationwide. There are no speaker fees associated with appearances. Funding is provided by the National Pork Board and the Pork Checkoff.

PERSONAL PROFILE

Sarah and her husband, Bart, have one son named Ty. Together, they own and operate Red Hill Farms, a 7-generation family farm located in both south central Kentucky and northern middle Tennessee where they raise swine, cattle, sheep and row crops to support their livestock. In their free time, they enjoy days at the lake and exhibiting market lambs.

PROFESSIONAL PROFILE

Sarah Jones is active in several agriculture organizations, including the Tennessee and Kentucky Pork Producers Associations, Kentucky and American Farm Bureau, and both state Cattlemen's Associations. She was runner-up for the 2021 Kentucky Farm Bureau Farm Woman of the Year award and was named Outstanding Certified 4-H Livestock Club Leader for Kentucky as well. Sarah is also Pork Quality Assurance Plus certified. The Jones family has been recognized with several awards, including the Kentucky Farm Bureau's Outstanding Young Farm Family of the Year award and the American Farm Bureau's Award of Excellence.
